The Freethinker Library is a collection of books of interest to freethinkers, humanists, atheists, feminists, and political progressives. They were written between 1870 and 1915. The FT Library includes a seven volume collection on religion by Robert G. Ingersoll, The Age of Reason and Other Writings on Religion by Thomas Paine, as well as books by Emma Goldman, Voltairine de Cleyre, M. Ricker, J. McCabe, and others. These works are highly critical of Christianity, the Bible, and sexism. The 7 Volume Set, Robert G. Ingersoll Against Christianity, contains 6 critical volumes on religion by the famous Freethinker and the biography of the famous orator by Herman E. Kittredge. We have arranged these paperback volumes by subject matter, have added subheadings and expanded the table of contents, all to make for easier reading. In Part 1 of this volume, Robert G. Ingersoll looks at Christian Doctrine and the beliefs that Christians are required to hold in order to be saved. It includes his famous lecture, What is Religion? and the debate between Justice Black and Ingersoll. In Part 2, Ingersoll examines contradictions in the Gospels, the origin of life on earth and proves the nonexistence of God and devils.
