

The Best Senior Living & Eldercare Options in Brooklyn, Queens, and Staten Island

Americas rapidly aging population and the growing number of people living into their 80s and 90s makes this series of guides to finding the best care and living resources for older adults throughout the New York area more important than ever. Information on a very broad range of topics-from legal services, assisted living, medical equipment, and financial services, to rehabilitation programs, patients rights, medications, transportation, and hospice programs-answers almost any question that a senior or caregiver might have. Special attention is given to living situation options, so that consumers can make informed decisions about modifying a seniors current home or choosing an assisted-living facility, retirement community, home health agency, nursing home, or Alzheimers program.
