

Open the Door to Better Communication with Your Teen: The Family Movie Night Prescription

Rather than a parenting book with chapter after chapter of theory for parents to read on their own, this book is actually a hands-on family activity for parents and teens to directly experience together. It is a practical and entertaining conversation-starter to open and keep open the doors of communication with teens. Through each Family Movie Night, families will:- Practice just two simple and essential rules for better communication with teens- Discuss critical issues all parents and teens must talk about, including a discussion of their strengths and role models- Experience the true underdog stories of people like Christ Gardner, Homer Hickman and Erin Brockovich With Dr. Garrison's prescription, parents and teens will have the confidence of open communication and both the security and pleasure of a closer relationship as they face the challenges of the teen years together.
